WALL-E

In the 22nd century, the megacorporation Buy n Large (BnL) assumed every economic service on Earth, including the government. Overrun by un-recycled waste, the planet eventually became so polluted that it could no longer support life. In an attempt to keep humanity alive, BnL sponsored a five-year exodus to outer space aboard massive executive starliners, the most famous of which was the Axiom. These starliners were giant cruise ships in space that supported every need for the humans with a fully-automated robot crew. Hundreds of thousands of WALL-E (Waste Allocation Load Lifter Earth-Class) units were left behind to clean up the planet by compacting the trash into cubes and stacking them into skyscraper-like towers for easy disposal. However, this plan was rejected as BnL determined Earth was too toxic for return to be feasible. By 2815, seven hundred years later, only one WALL-E (voice created by Ben Burtt) remains operational.

SIMPSONS

The Simpsons is an American animated sitcom which was created by Matt Groening for the Fox Broadcasting Company. It is a satirical parody of the middle class American lifestyle epitomized by its titular family, which consists of Homer, Marge, Bart, Lisa, and Maggie. The show is set in the fictional town of Springfield, and it lampoons many aspects of the human condition, as well as American culture, society as a whole, and television itself.

The family was conceived by Groening shortly before a pitch for a series of animated shorts with the producer James L. Brooks. Groening created a dysfunctional family and named the characters after members of his own family, substituting Bart for his own name. The shorts became a part of The Tracey Ullman Show on April 19, 1987.
